COLCA TREK 03 DAYS:

RESUME: The Colca Canyon, at 3191m from highest to lowest point, was once considered the deepest canyon in the world until someone measured the more remote Cotahuasi canyon nearby and declared a few metres deeper. Regardless of whether it is number one or number two, the Colca Canyon is an impressive geological feature, particularly given its long history of human occupation. One of the most popular trekking routes in the Colca Canyon is the trail that links the town of Cabanaconde, San Juan de Chuccho, Tapay, Cosnihua and Malata, as well as pre-inca ruins and a small oasis called Sangalle. For the trekking in the Colca Canyon you don't need to have a lot of hiking experience . Arequipa and Colca Canyon are the best place to become acclimatized....

PRICE: USD $ 70.00 PER PERSON
